BERLIN RIOTS.

A REVOLT IN MINIATURE.

FURTHER BLOODSHED.

YOUNG GIRLS PARTICIPATE.

MANY WOUNDED, TWO DEAD.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

A painful feature of the labour riot in Berlin over the importation of non-unionists is the excesses of young girls and the worst class of Berlin females.

The police state that the rioters attack at all decently dressed people. Many looted the shops.

A howling mob scattered the police. Two died in a bed in a beer-shop. The crowd demolished the interior, fatally injuring the landlady and her wife. One policeman fired on the mob until ammunition was used. He was discovered despatched severely wounded.

The majority of the rioters are the better class artisans.

11.25 p.m.

Tonight there is again force rising in the Mohabit quarter of Berlin.

RIOT AREA CLOSED.

MARCH VIGOROUSLY USED.

MANY PEOPLE HIDDEN DOWN.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

Many thousands of factory hands are gathered in Mohabit. The authorities have restricted access to the riot area to residents, and have closed the taverns. The police are provided with force.

Rioters last night filled the Henden and Turin streets, yelling and cursing, and finally throwing stones. Thereupon the police wielded their sabres so vigorously that the wounded strewn both sides of the streets. Others were ridden over. Twenty people were conveyed to the Mohabit Hospital. Eventually the rioters were driven into the recesses of Mohabit.

A rioter has died of a fractured skull, and a policeman has succumbed to knife wounds.

TROOPS IN READINESS.

FEAR OF OTHER UPRISINGS.

OFFICIAL POLICE REPORT.

Troops are held in readiness in the vicinity of Mohabit, but the authorities fear to summon them to their aid, lest the intervention of the army should lead to an upsurge in other cities.

An official statement issued from the headquarters of the police says:—

"This is an extremely serious affair. It is a revolution in miniature.

The riots have been carefully planned. Simultaneous outbreaks at different points, signals given by hand and whistle, and the fact that the Mohabit is surrounded simultaneously at widely different places reveal system and organization."

A WANTON OUTRAGE.

POLICE ATTACK JOURNALISTS.

REVELATIONS NOT WANTED.

A savage attack was made by police last night on newspaper correspondents in the disturbed area, and four received painful wounds.

Mr. Wile ("Daily Mail"), Mr. Tower ("Daily News"), Dr. Shaw ("New York Times"), and Mr. Lawrence (Gleaner), correspondents were motored through Turin streets, in pursuance of an assurance from a lieutenant of police that there was no objection to them doing this. They stopped their motor car to watch the police beating people through the open space called Kienner Terraces.

Half a dozen policemen after driving a couple of young girls through the bushes returned to the pavement. A detective immediately ordered them to attack the journalists' motor car, and the police set upon ruthlessly slashed at the occupants with their sharpened sabres.

Mr. Wile received a nasty blow on the head from the flat of a sword. Dr. Shaw was struck heavily on the arm and face, but the force of the blow was broken by the frame of the car. Mr. Tower was struck and bruised, and Mr. Lawrence was struck repeatedly over the right arm and shoulder, both his hands being cut, and a tendon of the middle finger of the right hand being laid bare.

The scene was brilliantly lighted. Trams were passing, and there were no crowds. The only occupants of the pavement were police.

The chauffeur drove off, or the whole party might have been seriously wounded that they would have been compelled to leave the place.

The Berlin correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" informs his newspaper that he was blinded to depart from the disturbed area, and adds: "The police desire to possess the monopoly of reporting matters."
